Aktor Interactive to launch Jobboardfinder

On Thursday 15th May, French-based international recruitment communications agency Aktor Interactive is scheduled to launch Jobboardfinder.net – a new website designed to provide an overview of the international job-board market.

It's described as "a guide enabling recruiters to find centralised information on the most widely-used job sites worldwide", and aims to provide "an impartial factual market overview, an efficient comparison tool and up-to-date information on the online recruitment media market worldwide".

The subscription-based site will offer a searchable database of more than a thousand job-boards, including national, regional and niche sites as well as professional social networks. Information will cover everything from audience and traffic data to product news, costs and contact details.
